TuneCore Names Jamie Purpora President of Music Publishing Administration

TuneCore, the world's largest digital distribution company, has announced that Jamie Purpora will join the company as President of Music Publishing Administration.

Mr. Purpora previously was Senior VP of Administration at Bug Music Inc., a company he had worked with since 1994. He was the Director of Royalties from 1997 to 2001 and held the Senior VP of Administration position for the last 10 years.

In a recent blog post entitled "The Emergence Of The New Music Industry," TuneCore CEO Jeff Price examines six fundamental changes in the business and how important it is for artists to be educated on their six inherent rights.
